The Annual Gala celebrates the Phillips’s ongoing commitment to education, cultural diplomacy, and exploration of modern and contemporary art around the world. This special event brings together Members of Congress and the Administration, Supreme Court Justices, senior corporate executives, ambassadors, philanthropists, and national media for an unforgettable evening among the museum’s masterpieces. At this year’s gala we are honored to celebrate The Phillips Collection with our 2020 diplomatic partner, the Embassy of Singapore.

All gala proceeds directly support The Phillip Collection’s innovative art education programs, which impact thousands of students, families, adults, and teachers in Washington, DC, and across the country. We look forward to welcoming you at the 2020 Annual Gala to help enrich lives and strengthen communities through the power of art.

CONGRESSIONAL HONOREE

As we approach the 100th anniversary of America’s first museum of modern art, we will build upon our storied history and position the Phillips as a global force for experimentation and a leader in contemporary discourse. Today, The Phillips Collection uses the power of art to stimulate conversation in fresh and dynamic ways. We believe that progressive ideas incubate in creative spaces and that novel approaches to looking at the world emerge at the intersection of various art forms. We believe that art can catalyze learning across educational curricula—even among the sciences, humanities, and diplomacy—and that art can foster meaningful dialogue about well-being, civic responsibility, and environmental literacy.

By cultivating a dynamic and far-ranging dialogue that uses modern and contemporary art as a point of departure, the Phillips can become a wellspring of innovation, educational outreach, and groundbreaking partnerships.

PRISM.K12

The Phillips Collection pushes the boundaries of K–12 education with the development of Prism.K12, a set of six strategies that help teachers create rigorous arts-integrated lessons and curricula. The museum has produced award-winning arts-integrated teacher resources, engaged in local school partnerships, and led national K–12 initiatives.

PHILLIPS@THEARC

In 2018, the Phillips opened a satellite campus at THEARC in Southeast DC, providing arts-infused services to new audiences. Phillips@THEARC programs—co-created with Ward 7 and 8 community organizations and residents and THEARC partners—focus on arts and wellness for caregivers and older adults and arts-integrated learning for K–12 teachers and students.

ART & WELLNESS

The relationship between art, health, and well-being resonated deeply with museum founder Duncan Phillips. The Creative Aging program, a collaboration with Iona Senior Services, Arts for the Aging, and Congress Heights Senior Wellness Center, helps older adults make and strengthen social connections through creative experiences.

ENHANCING THE MUSEUM EXPERIENCE

The Phillips engages visitors of all ages through talks, inquiry-based tours, and lectures, as well as interdisciplinary experiments in music, dance, and theater. New family programming includes a family gallery, gallery experiences, and creativity workshops.
